INTRADISTRICT ATTENDANCE OPTIONS FOR THE 2010-2011 SCHOOL YEAR

While students are generally expected to attend high school in their zoned attendance area, the California Education Code and the policies of the Board of Trustees do allow various options for students wanting to attend schools outside their established attendance areas. A summary of California school attendance options prepared by the California Department of Education is on page two of this notice.

Student transfers between our comprehensive high schools are limited (School Board/Board Policy/Staff Rule 5118). Consideration will be given to siblings concurrently enrolled. Based on the provisions of the law and the applicable Board policies, the Roseville Joint Union High School District presents the following information:

APPLICATIONS

Intradistrict applications (for students living within the district boundaries) are available at the District Office.

DEADLINE

Intradistrict applications must be received at the District Office by FEBRUARY 16, 2010 at 4:00 P.M.

Because important financial and staffing decisions will be made based on student choices, applications received after February 16, 2010 may not be considered.

RESIDENTIAL ELIGIBILITY FOR ATHLETICS

Student transfers will most likely affect athletic eligibility. The California Interscholastic Federation governs high school athletics. Additional information is available at www.cifsjs.org (Constitution: Article 2, Eligibility Requirements: "Transfer eligibility," Bylaw 214).

Choosing Your Child's School

A Summary of School Attendance Alternatives in California

Choosing a School Inside the District in Which Parents/Guardians Live

California law [Education Code Section 48980(h)] requires all school boards to inform each student's parents/guardians at the beginning of the school year of the various ways in which they may choose schools for their children to attend other than the ones assigned by school districts.

The law [Education Code Section 35160.5(c)] requires the school board of each district to establish by July 1, 1994, a policy that allows parents/guardians to choose the schools their children will attend, regardless of where the parents/guardians live in the district. The law limits choice within a school district as follows:

- Students who live in the attendance area of a school must be given priority to attend that school over students who do not live in the school's attendance area.
- In cases in which there are more requests to attend a school than there are openings, the selection process must be "random and unbiased," which generally means students must be selected through a lottery process rather than on a first-come, first-served basis. A district cannot use a student's academic or athletic performance as a reason to accept or reject a transfer.
- Each district must decide the number of openings at each school which can be filled by transfer students. Each district also has the authority to keep appropriate racial and ethnic balances among its schools, meaning that a district can deny a transfer request if it would upset this balance or would leave the district out of compliance with a court-ordered or voluntary desegregation program.
- A district is not required to provide transportation assistance to a student who transfers to another school in the district under these provisions.
- If a transfer request is denied, a parent/guardian does not have an automatic right to appeal the decision. A district may, however, voluntarily decide to put in place a process for parents/guardians to appeal a decision.
